ABOUT THE CITY

Welcome you to the first heritage city of India!

The city of Ahmedabad, now the seventh largest metropolis in India and the largest in the state of Gujarat, was founded in 1411 AD as a walled city on the eastern bank of the river Sabarmati. Straddling the Sabarmati river, this prosperous city of six million is a delight for archaeologists, anthropologists, architects, historians, sociologists, traders, bargain hunters, and plain tourists. The city has a great architectural tradition reflected in many exquisite monuments, temples and modern buildings. The city enjoys a thriving cultural tradition, being the centre of Gujarati cultural activities and diverse traditions of different ethnic and religious communities. Historically, it has been one of the most important centres of trade and commerce in western India. It is also a major industrial and financial city contributing to all stock exchanges in India to the productivity of the state. Combining these all, the historic walled city is the home of several scientific and educational institutions of national, regional and global importance.

CLIMATE

Located in the west zone of the India, Ahmedabad is likely to see the temperature of minimum 14 degree Celsius to maximum 31 degree Celsius
